THE GOVERNOR TALKS

Says He Finds Sentiment Strong in The East For Statutory Prohibition.

RURAL SCHOOL LIBRARIES

Thirteen Authorized and Checks Forwarded—Amend Charter of Charlotte—Pitiable Condition of Young Hebrew.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 14.—Governor Glenn who is just back from Rocky Mount, Kinston and other points in Eastern Carolina declares that wherever he has been recently, especially in Eastern Carolina, he finds a predominating sentiment for prohibition, and more especially for action to be taken by the special session of the Legislature to this end.

Asked if he found this sentiment favoring an act that will provide immediate prohibition or for an act that will simply provide an election on a constitutional amendment for prohibition as a constitutional provision, he said it seemed to be largely for immediate prohibition, quite a number seeming to further favor that provision be made also for a ballot at the next general election on the constitutional amendment, but prohibition to be in force in the State in the meantime to demonstrate its advantages. He would not say whether he would advocate either or both of these provisions when he sends his message to the extra session.

Thirteen new rural public school libraries are authorized in the office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction and the State appropriation for each has been forwarded, there being one library each for alamance, Sampson, Lincoln, Edgecombe, Surry, Green, Robeson, Durham, Caswell, Rutherford and two for Cherokee county.

It is expected that quite a number of bills of this character will be offered during the special session in the event the rules to be adopted in caucus permit the introduction of miscellaneous measures.

In semi-sane intervals he has given the information that he is a cigar manufacturer at Detroit and was was on his way to relatives in Savannah in hope of regaining his health. No communication has yet been established by the authorities here with either Savannah or Detroit in locating the man's people. He will be placed in the State Hospital for the Insane here until other arrangements are made. Hebrew citizens here are looking after his interests.

Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 14.—The North Carolina Grand Lodge of Masons convened in 121st annual session tonight with nearly six hundred representatives of lodges in every section of the State. In his annual address Grand Master Francis D. Winston delcared his determination to retire to the ranks and congratulated the Grand Lodge on the splendid progress made, saying the Grand Lodge Temple is now an assured fact with the work of construction well advanced and the membership in the State more than eighteen hundred. He appealed for a $100,000 endowment fund for the Masonic Orphanage at Oxford and paid an eloquent tribute to the Masonic dead, mentioning especially Grand Lecturer B. W. Hatcher, and recommending that in the future the office of Grand Lecturer be filled by the chairman of the Board of Custodians.

The report of Grand Treasurer John C. Drewry showed 18,008 active Masons in the State, a gain of one hundred per cent. in ten years, over $13,000 receipts, a 300 per cent. gain.

The report on the Oxford Orphan Asylum showed 317 children being cared for and the institution's finances in excellent shape, showing $61,719 receipts, $55,826 disbursements and $5,891 balance. The Grand Lodge will continue in session until Friday.

STORM WAS QUITE SEVERE

Clyde Liner Reaches Port 36 Hours Late, Cargo Slightly Damaged. Revenue Cutter Arrives. Sailing Craft.

Echoes of the terrible storm which swept the Carolina and Virginia coast Friday night and Saturday, continuing with strong head winds through Sunday and Monday, began to come in yesterday and from all indications the weather on the outside was the worst in some time.

The Clyde Liner Carib, Capt. Rich, previously reported through error as having arived Monday night, 12 hours overdue, did not get here in fact until yesterday evening at 6 o'clock, about 36 hours overdue. Capt. Rich reported having encountered rough weather soon after leaving New York and struck the full force of the storm off the Capes and off Hatteras. When she reached port her cargo was slightly shifted and some damage was done but this was mostly to the portion of her cargo for Georgetown, S. C. There was no damage whatever to the vessel, which put to sea as soon as the blow became intense. She could make but little progress against the strong head winds which continued until yesterday. There was some anxiety for the ship yesterday and this was shared in most keenly by the families of at least three Wilmingtonians who were on board. These were First Assistant Engineer Tom Lewis, of the ship; Messrs. George Baldwin and Joe Watters, Jr., both passengers from New York. They arrived safely and were glad to get ashore after their trying experience.

The first heard of the Carib after she left New York was through Capt. Candlish, of the British steamer Reliance, which arrived early in the afternoon from Baltimore for cargo of cotton from Messrs. Alexander Sprunt & Son. Capt. Candlish and Pilot Guthrie sighted the ship off Hatteras Monday afternoon. She was some distance out and making comparatively little progress against the strong head winds, the Reliance having beat her in port by several hours. Capt. Candlish reports a very rough voyage but his ship rode out the gale with no damage.

Capt. Edgar Williams, of the Sea King, reported yesterday afternoon that the four-masted schooner George A. McFadden, 936 tons, Capt. Meader, bound from Port Tampa to Baltimore with cargo of phosphate rock, had been towed into Southport disabled. During the severe storm her foresail, mainsail, mizzensail and other rigging was carried away while her fore gaff was broken. The vessel was otherwise uninjured and will procure new sails and proceed. Capt. Williams also learned from one of the vesels arriving during the day that an unknown schooner was off Charleston with a disabled masthead.

The United States Revenue Cutter Seminole, Capt. J. H. Quinan commanding, which reached port yesterday afternoon from a cruise south, reports on January 12th, while bound from Charleston, S. C., to Winyah Bay, having spoken the following vessels at anchor: Four masted schooner Henry B. Fiske, of Boston, from Philadelphia to Jacksonville, Fla.; her fore-topmast and jibboom were gone. Four masted schooner Salisbury, of Salisbury, from New York to Florida. Both vessels declined offers of assistance from the Seminole, but wished to be reported.

On January 13th, while bound from Winyah Bay to Southport, the Seminole spoke the three-masted schooner Mary B. Baird, of Camden, N. J., from Philadelphia to Knight's Key, Fla., and the four-masted schooner John B. Manning, of Philadelphia, from Boston to Brunswick, Ga. Both were anchored and declined offers of assistance from the Seminole, but wished to be reported.

DANCE AT LUMINA

Delightful Affair on the Tapis for This Evening—Cars.

Indications point to a delightful success of the dance to be given at Lumina by a number of the young men of the city as a return courtesy for the very enjoyable "Leap Year" ball given by the young ladies in the Masonic Temple during the holidays. The young people will go down on two special cars of the Consolidated Company, leaving the city at 8:15 o'clock and returning at the will of the guests. Lumina is enclosed and the large fireplace will afford all the heat necessary to take the chill out of the atmosphere. The german will be led by Mr. Paul L. Cantwell and the music will be by Hollowbush's Academy Orchestra. The affair is being looked forward to with pleasurable interest by a large number of the young society people of the city.

STATE PROHIBITION

CIRCULATED YESTERDAY

Protestant Ministers Not Identified With Election Movement Sign the Paper—State Anti-Saloon Committee Meets.

Considerable interest was injected into the local prohibition campaign yesterday when it became known that certain of the Protestant ministers not identified with the present movement for a local option election in Wilmington were circulating a petition asking the State Executive Committee of the Anti-Saloon League at its meeting in Raleigh last night to petition the Legislature to enact statutory prohibition for the entire State at its extra session to be held on January 21st.

It is stated that the petition was signed by a large majority of the Protestant ministers of the city and a number of business men, the signatures being about 35 in number. The petition was wired last evening by Mr. Sprunt, who was one of the business men identified with the movement, Rev. K. D. Holmes, of Fifth Street M. E. Church, being largely interested in securing the signatures in the limited time the leaders of the movement had to work.

From what could be learned, the State Executive Committee of the Anti-Saloon League was called to meet last night in Raleigh to decide upon what would be done in the way of petitioning the Legislature for statutory prohibition at this extra session. The Wilmington signers expressed their request to the extra session of the General Assembly in about the following language:

"We, the undersigned citizens of Wilmington request the executive committee of the State Anti-Saloon League to petition the coming session of the Legislature to enact statutory prohibition for the whole State, equivalent to the Alabama act."

As Rev. Fred D. Hale, D. D., the recognized leader of the present movement for the local option election, has previously declared against such a step on the ground that prohibition would be a failure without a public sentiment behind it that would make its enforcement possible, the action of the other Protestant ministers is interesting. It is understood that Chairman H. G. Fennell, of the Wilmington Anti-Saloon League, left for Raleigh yesterday morning to attend the State meeting and it is presumed that he will be in line with Dr. Hale on this question, in which event the Wilmington influence on the committee will be against statutory prohibition at this time.

There were no other developments in the campaign yesterday. The committee which has in charge an examination of the names on the petitions calling for an election March 17th, met yesterday afternoon in the Mayor's office at the City Hall, but nothing was given out as to the progress that is being made. It is hardly expected that the committee will be ready to report for two weeks or more. Thus far all the investigation of the names has been with a view of seeing that all are on the registration books. Later an effort will be made to ascertain if all the signers paid their poll tax for the year in question.

The following special was received last night from Raleigh:

Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 14.—The Executive Committee of the North Carolina Anti-Saloon League had a three hours session tonight and prepared the following address to the people of North Carolina:

"We, the members of the Executive Committee of the Anti-Saloon League, after careful consideration and after conferring with leading and various citizens of the State, are of the unanimous opinion that the special session of the General Assembly presents a fitting opportunity of securing an act prohibiting the manufacture and sale of liquor in this State. We believe a majority of the people of this State demand this legislation and the time has come for the enactment of the same. With anything like unanimity among the temperance people of the State, we believe the General Assembly will pass such an act. Patriotic men demand that the whiskey question shall be removed from partisan politics and settled forever in the interest of morality. We, therefore, call upon all friends of temperance, to use their influence with the General Assembly and especially with their immediate representatives and urge them to vote for prohibition, and we ask all friends of temperance to attend a convention to be held in Raleigh on Tuesday, January 21st, 1908.

"The crystalization of public sentiment makes this the opportunity of our generation for settling for all time this great moral issue, and one week's activity now may count more now than an ordinary lifetime of temperance work. Let every man do his duty."

This address and call is signed by Jno. A. Oates, chairman Executive Committee; Heriot Clarkson, President State Convention; R. L. Davis, State Organizer; W. S. O'B. Robinson, W. H. Sprunt, W. B. Cooper, Clarence H. Pou, James I. Johnson, W. N. Jones, Jas H. Pou, H. G. Fennell, R. B. White, W. C. Douglass, J. A. Hartness, N. B. Broughton, I. C. Blair, Josephus Daniels, H. A. London and Q. K. Nimmocks.

BIG SESSION OF COURT

Already Seven Capital Cases Are Set for Trial—Jail Full and Many Defendants Are Out on Bond.

There are no less than seven capital offences docketed for trial at the term of New Hanover Superior Court, which will convene next Tuesday and remain in session two weeks, Judge Walter H. Neal, of Laurinburg, presiding. This is the largest number of capital cases on record at a single term of the court in this county.

The defendants are E. T. Cook and Jessie Riggins, young white men of Delgado, charged with implication with L. M. Bryant in the killing of Banks Rothwell, an old colored man whom they went to arrest in Masonboro township some months ago; Robert Eagleton, a colored boy, charged with stabbing another, Fred Clark, to death, in the northern part of the city some time ago; Sam Glover, for killing Albert Jones in the northern part of the city; Alex Mallett, charged with killing Emeline Brown, a negress who lived next door to him, his gun having gone off accidentally; Will Richardson, charged with the double murder in Terry's alley, Chirstmas night; Luther Smith, charged with the killing of another negro also in the northern part of the city shortly before the holidays. Then in addition there is a charge of arson against Mary McDaniel, the colored woman charged with putting out the fire which destroyed a block of houses almost at Second and Meares street some months ago. In addition to these there are a large number of other cases of more or less interest, so that it is expected it will require a full two weeks to dispose of the docket.

Up to yesterday 148 cases were set for trial at the coming term, there being 162 defendants in all. Of this number 51 are in jail with daily commitments every day. It is expected that the jail will have at least 60 boarders by the time the court is convened.

SOUSA'S BAND COMING

Big Musical Event at Academy of Music Tomorrow Night.

Tomorrow night comes Sousa and his band, a most palatable fact, and one that has unusual significance. It is authoritatively said that the present organization is larger in numbers than any that Sousa has ever before taken across the continent. The roster totals nearly or quite sixty persons, which is a dozen or so in excess of the usual quantum. Moreover, the quality of the organization is augmented in the same proportion, as Sousa selected the best and most skilled class of instrumentalists for the additional ranks The organization is thus made more important artistically than ever.

Sousa concerts have, from their beginning, been marked by a certain dynamic impulse that has made them characteristic.

The soloists are Miss Lucy Allen, a soprano of whom pleasantest things are said. Miss Jeannette Powers, a violinists, whom Sousa has distinguished by choosing from among many candidates for the third time, a thoroughly western girl; and Mr. Herbert L. Clarke, long one of the very first of living cornet virtuosi. It goes without the saying that John Philip Sousa will direct in person the splendid programme announced.

Seats for the concert are now on sale and the scale runs to $1.50, but the general admission will remain at 50 cents. Downstairs the first four rows (A B C and D) are $1.00 instead of the last four rows, as the further back at a band concert the more desirable the seat.

FUNERAL OF MR. MADDEN.

Yemains Laid to Rest Yesterday After Services From Church.

In the presence of relatives and a large number of sorrowing friends, impressive funeral services were conducted at 10 o'clock yesterday morning from St. Thomas' Catholic Church over the remains of the late Mr. Jas. Madden, who passed away at his home in Wilmington early Monday morning. The services at the church were by Rev. Father C. Dennen, while the committal in beautiful Oakdale cemetery was said by Rev. Father Hannon.

The pall-bearers were: Honorary, Capt. John Barry, Messrs. Timothy Donlan and Thomas Torpy; active, Messrs. Martin O'Brien, William Flanagan, Mike Griffin, M. H. Kelly, John H. Sweeney and Capt. Robert Green.

Sales After Hours at 52.

There were sales of spirits after hours at 52 cents on the local market yesterday. The market up to closing was quoted nothing doing. The phenomenal rise in the price of spirits is attracting attention all over the naval stores belt and varying opinions are entertained as to whether the market will be able to hold its own after the rise.

SOUTHERN NATIONAL

OFFICERS AND DIRECTORS

President's Annual Report Discusses Conditions Generally and Affairs of the Bank in Particular. Satisfactory Year.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Southern National Bank was held yesterday at noon in its handsome building, southwest corner of Front and Chesnut streets. Mr. J. A. Brown, of Chadbourn, was made chairman and Mr. Stephen Jewett secretary. A committee composed of Capt. Donald MacRae and Mr. Thos. H. Wright to verify proxies reported that 1,354 shares of stock were represented in the meeting, of which 625 were in person and 729 by proxy.

The annual election of directors by the stockholders and the subsequent election of officers by the directors constitutes the staff of the new bank for the ensuing year as follows:

President—Matt J. Heyer.
Vice President—Hugh MacRae.
Vice President—D. L. Gore.
Cashier—C. N. Evans.
Assistant Cashier—W. B. Drake, Jr.

Directors—Messrs. Matt J. Heyer, Hugh MacRae, D. L. Gore, J. A. Arringdale, Z. W. Whitehead, J. A. Taylor, J. H. Rehder, L. Hanson, Isadore Bear, Eduard Ahrens, S. O. Middleton, H. C. Bridger, C. C. Pridgen.

At the meeting of the directors, Mr. H. C. Bridger, of Bladenboro, presided and Mr. Chas. N. Evans, the cashier, kept a record of the proceedings.

Perhaps the most interesting feature of the stockholders' meeting was the annual report of President Heyer. Discussing conditions financially in a general way the report says:

"The recent panic has been quite a blow to all banking interests for the time being, but I feel that it will eventually be the best thing that could have happened, not only for the banks but for all of us who will profit by our past experience.

"Prominent bankers, merchants and manufacturers believe the crisis has seen its worst in financial circles, but that reaction, lower prices, and lower wages must inevitably follow in mercantile and industrial affairs. While credit is unsettled and liquidation incomplete, recuperative forces are at work and I anticipate renewed activity when a lower and more stable level is reached."

The report of the president with regard to the affairs of the Southern National itself was very gratifying to the stockholders. During 1907 two dividends of three per cent. each were paid and $4,622.43 was passed to the undivided profit account of the bank, giving it a total undivided profits amounting to $19,000. During the year the United States government increased its deposits with the Southern National, this now amounting to $104,000. It was also shown that within the past few days the Panama Canal bonds recently purchased from the United States government had been sold at a profit of $1,000. The stockholders expressed themselves in every way pleased with the excellent management of the institution.

ACT OF A VANDAL.

Crepe Surreptitiously Snatched From Door on Front Street.

Various newspapers have laid claim recently to the distinction of discovering the meanest man on record. Various acts have been detailed to substantiate the claim to discovery, but the palm will have to be yielded to the vandal, who on Monday night surreptitiously snatched the crepe from the door of Mr. John W. Capps' place of business at 119 South Front street, the insignia being left on the door to indicate the place was closed on account of the death of Mrs. Capps' mother, Mrs. Dixon, on Myrtle Grove Sound. The crepe was not taken from the door for any value it would have been to the vandal, for it was literally torn off the door and was apparently the yielding to all that was low and mean in the disposition of some creature calling himself a human. Mr. Capps was naturally outraged at the occurrence when he returned from the funeral yesterday and would pay a goodly sum to be able to get his hands on the fellow, to whom there is no clue.

Funeral of Mrs. Dixon.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Susan M. Dixon was conducted at 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon from the family residence on Myrtle Grove Sound, the Rev. George Shepard officiating. A large number of friends were present to pay a last sad mark of respect and esteem to the good woman and a number of beautiful floral tributes were laid on the casket. The remains were laid to rest in the family burying ground, the pall-bearers having been Messrs. J. J. Piner, Geo. Rogers, L. Williams, Eli Southerland, Jesse Williams and Gordon Fergus.

GRAY OR JOHNSON.

Judge George Gray, the upright and able jurist of Delaware, has come out with a vigorous indorsement of the political platform of John A. Johnson, the clean and strong governor of Minnesota, says the Washington Post.. He has said of Johnson's recent enunciation of the principles of Democracy: "I heartily approve its every word. It is a clear and admirable expression of the political principles of the Democratic party as I understand them."

Each of these two strong, conscientous, and sound statesmen has suggested that the other would make an ideal President, and by this wholly unselfish expression of mutual appreciation and confidence each has shown himself as a man possessiong the high personal qualifications, as well as the solid political views, required of the leader of a great party. And such a sentiment, coming from men like Judge Gray and Gov. Johnson, may well be received by their party as the dictum of authority. The rank and file of Democrats could not go far wrong in picking its next Presidential candidate according to the judgment of either of these men.

It follows, then, that the Democratic party, far from being impoverished of good Presidential timber, as has been urged by its Republican opponents and asseverated by certain disgruntled factions in its own ranks, is in reality as well off as it has been any time since the early days of the party, when it had perhaps a plethora of strong men standing in its ranks. Too many available candidates for the great office is actually a misfortune—as the Republicans are finding out—and what need has the party for more than two, or three at the outside, especially when those two are men of such force and character as George Gray and John Johnson?

Those weak-kneed Democrats who feel because they cannot find the answer that they must shamefacedly join in the general laugh which the question "What is a Democrat?" seems to raise in the ranks of their high and mighty opponents, should read a lately published epitome of Judge Gray's exposition of what Democracy really means. If they are unable to find for themselves a manly answer to the sneering question, and cannot define their position clearly, they can see at least that Judge Gray has done it for them, and done it well. He has given the answer in no unmistakable terms. The man has set forth in his various public expressions the main principles of the true modern Democrat as clearly, as forcibly, and as profoundly as ever Jefferson enunciated the party's convictions at its birth.

Let the party choose either Johnson or Gray to lead it in the coming campaign. Let it recognize Mr. Bryan's great personal strength and service by giving him a place second only to the leader. Then, against such a strong combination of sound political principles and great personal popularity, let the Republican cohorts look to their laurels.

Ex-Senator Joseph A. Brown, who was in Wilmington yesterday, was asked by a representative of the Star what he thought should be done at the extra session of the Legislature. He promptly replied: "Settle the railroad rate question and adjourn." He was very decided in expressing the opinion that the enactment of a State prohibition law at this time, would be an element of discord and weakness to the Democratic party in the coming campaign and should not be even considered at the extra session. Mr. Brown, besides being a successful business man, knows a thing or two about politics, and his views are entitled to serious consideration.

There is little prospect of the passage by Congress of a bill to stop the shipment of liquor from a State in which prohibition does not prevail into one in which it does, though there is considerable if not a majority sentiment in the House, at least, in favor of it, because Speaker Cannon is opposed to it; and for like reason there is equally little prospect of prohibition in the District of Columbia though there is a large sentiment in Congress in favor of this also. What the Speaker of the House says goes.—Charlotte Observer.

We think the Supreme Court of the United States has already decided, in the Wilson case, that intoxicating liquor is a legitimate article of Inter-State commerce, and that common carriers are compelled to deliver it, in unbroken packages, at points of destination, whether in prohibition territory or not.

CURRENT COMMENT.

"The newly-elected Mayor of Macon Ga., has compelled the common Council to reduce hs salary from $3,000 to $2,000. Safe to say he's no professional reformer. They never reduce salaries."—Albany (N. Y.) Argus (Dem.)

The Washington correspondent of the Charlotte Observer writes his paper that some of the Representatives are inclined to resent suggestions or instructions from Governor Glenn as to how they should vote upon a bill to prohibit the shipment of liquor into prohibition territory. That does seem a sort of "Great I Am" proceeding, doesn't it? "Here you! run along and vote so and so. I, the Great Father of this people, have said it."—Lumberton Robesonian (Dem.)

In any future railroad arrangements about the Seaboard it would not be well to leave out the calculation that Mr. John Skelton Williams is president of Raleigh and Charleston Railroad. It is now only forty-one miles long, running between Lumberton, N. C., and Marion, S. C., but when the link between Lumberton and Fayetteville is completed by using the Raleigh and Southport track many miles could be cut off between Raleigh and Marion, S. C., from which latter point it is proposed to build a line to Charleston. This will give a short line from Raleigh to Charleston that goes through fertile country. —Charlotte Observer, (Dem.)

"Secretary Taft urges upon Congress an increase in the pay of soldiers. He points out the increase in the number of desertions and the difficulty with which the nation secures men for enlistment. It has been a mystery of long standing how men could be found who are willing to enter the army—almost the hardest service, even in time of peace, one can find—for pay that a negro farm hand would not consider. While America is boasting of untold wealth and spending many millions on many things, it would be well to remember the men upon whom we rely in time of war, however little we consider them in time of peace.—Chattanooga Times (Dem.)

It is reported that a sufficient number of members of the Legislature have signified their intention of voting for the compromise proposition for the consideration of which Governor Glenn has called a special session of the Legislature, to insure its acceptance. If that is true it would seem to be unnecessary for the Legislature to be in session for more than a few days. It is to be hoped that no other legislation will be attempted. Of course, there is conjecture as to whether the Legislature will undertake to settle the question of a State prohibition law at this time. Surely it will not do another stunt in haste to repent at leisure, at the very time when it is in special session to reconsider an unfortunate piece of legislation. — Lumberton Robesonian. (Dem.)

Attorney General Bonaparte's direction to the various district attorneys of the United States to institute suits to recover penalties for the violations of Safety Appliances law involves nearly every important railroad in the country. The main point of contention is whether the number of air brakes employed on freight trains is adequate. A ruling was made by the Inter-State Commerce Commission some years ago to the effect that at least one-half the cars in a train should be thus equipped, and, accordingly, in railroad practice, each 50 per cent. equipment is regarded as a compliance with the act. The act, however, requires air brakes to be provided in measure sufficient to put trains under control. If a 50 per cent. equipment permits trains to "buckle" then they cannot be regarded as under control, and if only by the installation of the device on all cars this requirement will be met any less complete equipment would be a violation of the act.—Philadelphia Record (Dem.)

YPSILANTI.

Nearly Four Hundred Ways of Spelling the Name.

Curious postal officers in Michigan and Washington have been keeping for years past a record of the different ways Ypsilanti has been spelled on mail matters, and by comparing the notes they have preserved a list of veritable orthographic wonders has been compiled. This list easily establishes the claim that more different ways for spelling Ypsilanti have been devised than for spelling any other geographical name in America.

In all no less than 372 distinct ways of spelling the name have been counted, and it is probable that the greater number, perhaps all, have been used in good faith by persons who actually believed that the orthographic combinations reproduced were the correct combinations for representing Ypsilanti on the written or printed page. Every letter in the alphabet except "R" has been used as the initial letter of the name, though why so obvious a combination as Rypsilanti should be neglected when others much less obvious have been employed is difficult to explain. As a matter of fact the variations in the spelling are chiefly confined to the first syllable, "Y" being a letter lacking or having only an indifferent standing in many foreign languages.

Tipsy Lanti and Zyp Silanti are met with, and among the spellings farthest away from the accepted and official standard are Whypsorlanter and Hipasalandder.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

The Sawfish.

More energetic than any other sharks are the sawfish, whose snouts are prolonged into a broad blade of cartilage, which is horizontal when the fish is swimming in a normal position and has both its edges set with slightly curved teeth about an inch apart. The end of this formidable looking weapon is blunt and comparatively soft, so that it is quite incapable of the feats popularly attributed to it of piercing whales' bodies, ships' timbers, etc. It attacks other fish by a swift lateral thrust of the saw beneath them, the keen edge disemboweling them. Then it feeds upon the soft entrails, which are apparently the only food it can eat from the peculiar shape of its mouth. It has an enormous number of small teeth, sometimes as many as fifty rows in one individual, but they are evidently unfit for the rough duties required of their teeth by the garbage eating members of the family.

What Prohibition Costs.

(Milwaukee Journal.)

Take Georgia. On January 1 every saloon in Georgia was closed. Every wholesale liquor house closed. Every distillery closed. Thousands of people had to find new employment or move outside the State.

There were forty-two distilleries in Georgia and 850 licensed places for the sale of alcoholic drinks. The capital invested in breweries and other forms of the liquor business was more than $6,000,000. The city of Columbus alone lost $50,000 in revenue. Savannah, Macon and Augusta lost $75,000 each. It cost Atlanta $150,000. The Federal government loses $500,000 and total annual revenue lost to the State of Georgia and its cities is estimated as exceeding $750,000.

National Gardens.

There are two gardens of England—namely, Kent and Worcestershire. That of Ireland is usually said to be Carlow, in Leinster. Italy and Belgium are both called the garden of Europe, while that of France is Amboise, in the department of Indre-et-Loire. The garden of Italy is Sicily and of Spain Andalusia. In the east Ceylon and Burma have both received the title, and the district of India so honored is Oude. Glamorganshire is often spoken of as the garden of south Wales. To the region west of our noble Mississippi the title "garden of the world" has been given.

A Good Answer.

In a public school examination an eccentric examiner demanded, "What views would King Alfred take of universal suffrage and printed books if he were living now?" The ingenious pupil wrote in answer, "If King Alfred were alive he would be too old to take any interest in anything."—London Telegraph.

Monotonous Menu.

Fogg—Well, there's one thing I will say about this house. Bass—And what's that, for goodness' sake? Fogg—When you sit down to breakfast you always know what you're going to get.—Boston Transcript.

It is the first of all problems for a man to find out what kind of work he is to do in this universe.—Carlyle.

No Chesterfield.

"Lord Dunmore," he said, "was a good man. Tall and robust and supple, I can see him still with his short gray beard and his kind face. His only fault—a fault due to his aristocratic upbringing, no doubt—was the exaggerated value that he set upon correctness. He insisted in correctness in eating, in dress, in everything.

"At a dinner in Beacon street once I heard him tell a story about an incorrect self made man, or 'nouveau riche,' as he called him. This man was dressing one night to go out. His wife bustled into the room before he started to look him over.

"'But, George,' she said reproachfully, 'aren't you going to wear your diamond studs to the banquet?'

"'No. What's the use?' George growled. 'My napkin would hide 'em anyway.'"—New Orleans States.

A Gallant Highwayman.

A highwayman recently held up a gasoline runabout on the outskirts of Rome. The highwayman stopped the runabout with a shot in the air. Then he ran forth from the tomb that had concealed him—the holdup happened on the Appian Way—and found to his surprise only a woman in the little car.

"Where, madam, is your husband?" he demanded sternly and suspiciously.

"He's under the seat," she answered, flushing.

"Then," said the highwayman, "I will take nothing. "It's bad enough to have a husband like that without being robbed into the bargain."

Evolution of Chemistry.

The first chemists were the alchemists, who for hundreds of years vainly tried to make gold by compounding various chemicals. Chemistry was introduced into Spain by the Moors in 1150, and the Chinese and Egyptians claimed an early acquaintance with it. However, chemistry was not a science until the seventeenth century. Boerhaave was the first to combine the study of chemistry with medicine, and since then its evolution has been rapid.

A Bad Case.

"What's the matter, dear?" asked the doctor's wife. "Are you worried about Mr. Poorley's case?"

"Yes," replied the doctor.

"And is there no hope?"

"Very little. He says he doesn't expect to leave enough to pay more than one-third of my bill."—Answers.

The consciousness of clean linen is of itself a source of moral strength second only to that of a clean conscience.—Phelps.

CLEANLY WOMAN.

Erroneously Thinks by Scouring Her Scalp That She Cures Dandruff.

Cleanly woman has an erroneous idea that by scouring the scalp, which removes the dandruff scales, she is curing the dandruff. She may wash her scalp every day, and yet have dandruff her life long, accompanied by falling hair, too. The only way in the world to cure dandruff is to kill the dandruff germ, and there is no hair preparation that will do that but Newbro's Herpicide. Herpicide by killing the dandruff germ, leaves the hair free to grow as healthy Nature intended. Destroy the cause you remove the effect. Kill the dandruff germ with Herpicide. of paying more for an article through prejudice, than you can buy for less, that's just as good?

Take Whiskey, for Instance.

We make but one charge—just for whiskey—that's all. When you pay more than we ask for our whiskey you are being taxed for something else besides the whiskey.

SATTERLEE FOR OPTION

Prohibition a Failure Declares Noted Episcopal Prelate.

(Washington Post, 13th.)

Bishop Henry Yates Satterlee declared himself opposed to prohibition in addressing a meeting of the Women's Interdenominational Union at the First Congregational Church, yesterday afternoon.

"I am opposed to prohibition," said Bishop Satterlee, after being introduced by the presiding officer, Mrs. John N. Culbertson, "when the moral sentiment of the community cannot enforce such laws. Such a condition prevails in the District and for this reason alone I am opposed to prohibition.

"Prohibition has been tried in other places, and it has been found wanting. In Maine, which is pointed out as the first place where prohibitory laws were enacted, prohibition is a farce, because the laws are not backed by the moral sentiment of the community. As prohibition has not the moral backing of the people of the District, I do not believe in the enactment of a prohibition law here.

SUIT AGAINST LUMBER CO.

Former Policeman D. W. Walker Asks Damages for Injuries.

Through his attorney, Herbert McClammy, Esq., suit was instituted yesterday in the Superior Court by former Policement D. W. Walker against the Cape Fear Lumber Company, who was injured at the plant of the corporation some time ago. While the complaint has not yet been filed, it is understood that damages in the sum of $5,000 or more will be asked. It is stated by the plaintiff that he was employed about the mill and that a horse was used in towing certain lumber cars on a miniature railroad about the mill; that the horse was driven without bridle or other means of impeding him, as the result of which he ran away and the car of lumber passed over the plaintiff, inflicting permanent and serious injury. The case will probably be reached at the April term of the Superior Court in this city.

FOR NEW CUSTOM HOUSE.

Committee Appointed to Further the Movement for Building.

President J. A. Taylor, of the Chamber of Commerce, has appointed the following committee to further in any way possible the passage by Congress of the bill appropriating $500,000 or so much thereof as is necessary for the building of a new Custom House and Federal Court building in Wilmington, viz: Messrs. Wm. E. Springer, H. W. Malloy, W. E. Worth, C. C. Covington, L. B. Rogers, Z. W. Whitehead, Col. Walker Taylor and Collector of Customs B. F. Keith. It is understood that the last of the present month or the first of next, the committee will visit Washington in an effort to bring all possible pressure to bear to provide the needed accommodations for the two important branches of the government service in this city.

Estimated That 170 Lost Their Lives in Great Holocaust at Boyerstown, Pa., Monday Night. Work of Rescue.

(By Wire to the Morning Star.)

Boyertown, Pa. Jan. 14.—When nightfall put a stop to the work of recovering the dead from the ruins of the Rhoades Opera House where last night's holocaust occurred, the official roll of victims numbered 167. Whether any more bodies are buried beneath the ruins cannot be postively stated, but it is believed that the total list of victims will not go above 170.

The ratio of women and girls to men and boys is about nine to one. The work of identification will not be begun until tomorrow, as most of the bodies are still lying in a confused state at the four improvised morgues.

The inhabitants of the borough in the Berks County Hills are tonight steeped in grief. The calamity has paralyzed the little town of 2,500 people. Everybody in the place either lost one or more relatives or was intimately acquainted with those who died in the fire.

In several cases whole families have been wiped out. It was almost daylight this morning before the flames were extinguished and rescuers were able to reach the ruins to remove the dead. The morning was bitter cold. The entire ruins were coated with ice and there was danger of the walls falling. It was 7 o'clock before the first body was removed. Coroner Strasser, of Reading, who reached the scene last night had a detail of men ready to tag the bodies and keep a record of the description of every corps removed. The bodies were so badly burned, however, that there was little to describe them by, and it is safe to say that not half the victims ever will be identified. The second victim was taken from the ruins about half an hour after the first, and then the work of recovery moved more rapidly. By noon the rescuers became thoroughly exhausted from the cold and hard work and for a time work came almost to a standstill.

The Philadelphia and Reading Railway Company sent W. H. Keiffer superintendent of the Reading division, to the scene and Coroner Strasser immediately availed himself of the railroad's proffer.

Within an hour the company had two car loads of carpenters and laborers on the ground and the work of recovering the bodies moved so rapidly that victims were being taken from the ruins at the rate of two every five minutes.

There were many different stories as to the exact cause of the panic and fire and there were several rumors of arrests but the borough officials and Coroner Strasser tonight denied that any action whatever had been taken. The coroner said that his one thought was to get out all the bodies before a sleet or snow storm should set in and hamper the work.

The Rhoades Opera House was located on second floor of a three story brick building. The first floor was occupied by a National Bank and several stores and the third floor was used for lodge rooms. The entertainment hall was a large room about fifty feet wide and seventy-five feet long. It had no gallery. There was a stairway at the front of the building and a narrow exit in the rear of the stage. Fire escapes were built on both sides and on the front of the building.

So far as can be learned there were about 425 per sons packed in the room, most of whom were adults. The number of children present was comparatively small. There were about sixty-five persons, all local talent, on the stage who were giving a performance of the Scottish Reformation. The entertainment was nearly over, the audience waiting for the curtain to go up on the last part when something went wrong with the calcium light apparatus that was perched on a small platform near the front entrance of the building and at the back of the audience. The light was in charge of H. W. Fisher, of Carlisle, Pa., and he says a rubber tubing slipped from one of the tanks. At any rate there was a loud hissing sound which caused many in the audience to turn their heads in curiosity to see what it was. There was absolutely no panic up to this time, and nothing probably would have happened if one or more of the performers behind the curtain had not been curious to learn what was causing the noise. Hearing the hissing sound and the slight commotion in the audience, one of the performers raised the curtain from the floor. In front of the curtain and serving as footlights was a tin tank perhaps eight feet long, three inches wide and three inches high. It contained coal oil and about ten lights. In raising the curtain the performer accidentally turned this tank over and it fell to the floor within a few inches of those persons in the front row. The Rev. Adam A. Weber, pastor of St. John's Lutheran church for the benefit of whose Sunday School the entertainment was being given, tried to pick up the tank with the assistance of others, but before they could do so the oil flowed out and caught fire.

Then came the inevitable cry of fire. Eye witnesses say that the audience rose en masse, and the one impulse was to reach the front door. All attempted it but few got out.

While the flames were being checked an unfortunate scene occurred. Some of the firemen made frequent trips to nearby saloons with the result that toward morning some of the men became unruly. There were frequent fights and at one time it looked as though the Pottstown and Boyertown companies would become involved in a free fight. The State police who had been summoned from their barracks at Reading to assist the town in its affliction, prevented a more serious affray.

The condition became so serious that Burgess Koehler at 5 o'clock in the morning issued an order to all saloon keepers within the borough to close their places until further orders.

SENATE AND HOUSE WERE BOTH BUSY

When adjournment was taken at 5 P. M. 86 sections of the 342 had been disposed of.

When the House today resumed consideration of the bill, Mr. Wilson, of Pennsylvania, moved to strike out the whole of section 45, which prohibits any one from inducing artificer or workmen employed at any arsenal or armory to leave the service of the government and enter private employ.

The amendment started a storm of discussion as to the necessity of such legislation in time of peace. Mr. Cockran characterized the section as extraordinary and as laying pitfalls for the unwary.

Mr. Crumpacker maintained that the proposed law did not prevent a man involuntary leaving the government service, but that it was intended to provide an element of public policy.

The element of public policy would exist only in case of war, interjected Mr. Williams, who referred to the Webb amendment voted down yesterday which sought to limit the application of the law to time of war.

Mr. Hull of Iowa, chairman of the Committee on Military Affairs, declared that in time of peace, the government was preparing for war. The amendment, he said, sought to destroy the ability of the government to care for its defence.

The amendment was lost 78 to 104.

Mr. Hardin, Texas, offered an amendment to Section 85 making it unlawful for any corporation to make any money contribution in connection with any election at which state legislators are to be voted for who upon election shall have the right to elect a United States Senator, buf it was voted down.

Mr. Kimball, Kentucky, thought the section should include besides money contributions "any other thing of value," and offered an amendment. On division the amendment was carried 56 to 54 but the Republicans rallied their forces and defeated it 77 to 91.

A drastic amendment covering violations of the law prohibiting National banks or corporations from making money contributions in connection with any election to any political office, was offered by Mr. Cockran, New York. The present law provides a penalty of $1,000 fine or not more than a year's imprisonment of both, but Mr. Cockran's amendment called for a $10,000 fine and imprisonment for ten years. The penalty of existing law, he said, was ridiculously disproportionate to the enormity of the offense.

A statement by Mr. Moon that the bill was drafted at the last session of Congress "by a Democratic statesman," and should not be amended except in separate bills, called forth fervid addresses from Democrats who said they had no such regard for the sanity of the alleged Democratic law as to prevent them from trying to amend it.

Mr. Williams, of Mississippi, while agreeing that the law referred to was a Democratic idea, advanced by Senator Tillman, said that it was not his bill as originally drawn. He favored the Cockran amendment and said that the real criminals in the flesh and blood should be fined and imprisoned" as much as the law created, artificial paper existing things called corporations."

The amendment was lost by a vote of 69 to 77 after which the House adjourned.

CONDITIONS IN CUBA.

Report of Provisional Governor Transmitted to Senate.

(By Wire to the Morning Star.)

Washington, Jan. 14.—In transmitting to the Senate today the report of Provisional Governor Magoon on conditions in Cuba the president said:

"I cannot too heartily commend the action of the provisional governor and his civil associates of the army in all its parts in connection with this Cuban matter. I am glad to be able to say that we can now definitely announce that one year hence, by or before February 1, 1909, we shall have turned over the island to the President and Congress to be elected next December by the people of Cuba. Our word to turn over the island to its own people will be scrupulously regarded and through their own president and Congress they will administer the government of the island a year hence."

MATE IS DROWNED.

Narrow Escape of Schooner and Crew in Pamlico Sound.

(By Wire to the Morning Star.)

Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 14.—A special from Elizabeth City tonight says: "The schooner E. R. Daniels, Captain Saunders, arrived in port this afternoon after a most stormy and perilous voyage of seven days from Wanchese to this city. Coming up Pamlico Sound during the severe storm of last Thursday, the vessel reeled and rocked and it looked at one time as if it would be wrecked and the entire crew lost. The captain and mate were both knocked overboard and the mate who was Allen Gray, of Avon, N. C., was drowned. Captain Saunders clung to the rigging and managed to get back in the boat without serious injury. The body of the mate has not yet been recovered.

TRAGEDY ON RAILROAD.

Franklinton, N. C., Lady Killed by Seaboard Train Yesterday.

Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 14.—Mrs. Mary A. Williams, of Franklinton, N. C., was found dead about five o'clock this afternoon near a railroad crossing about one mile south of that town. Mrs. Williams, who was very old, had been on a visit to a neighbor on the opposite side of the railroad from her home and it is supposed was killed on her way back home by Seaboard Passenger train No. 41. Mrs. Williams was the daughter of the late Colonel Isaac Winston, and widow of the late Captain W. H. Williams.

FLEET AT RIO JANEIRO.

Navy Officers and Men Shown Many Courtesies.

(By Cable to the Morning Star.)

Rio Janeiro, Jan. 14.—The first of the many official functions to be given in honor of the visiting American Naval officers during the stay here, took place yesterday. The first event was a visit to the Brazilian minister of marine, Admiral Alencar, and this was followed by a reception by the President of the Republic, Dr. Penna, and a banquet by the American Ambassador, Irving B. Dudley. Dr. Penna cordially welcomed the visitors to Brazil. The Ambassador's function was a brilliant affair.

In the afternoon the American officers went out to Petropolis, the home of the diplomatic corps, 22 milesfrom the capital. They were accompanied by many high Brazilian officials and by representatives of the various legations.

Upon leaving the residence of Dr. Penna the officers were driven to the home of Mr. Dudley. The banquet was superb.

Among those present were all the American admirals, the commanding officer of each battleship, the Brazilian Minister of Marine, the Brazilian Minister of War, the Chief of the Naval Staff, an official representing the Minister of Foreign Affairs, Baron de Rio Branco, and a number of deputies and senators.

There was a little brawl between some of the American sailors from the fleet and Brazilian and Portugese boatmen at the landing dock at midnight last night.

When questioned regarding it, Rear Admiral Evans said:

"The occurrence was only an ordinary drunken row which was quickly stopped by the local police and the patrols from the ships. The liberty men were reeled and all liberty was temporarily suspended until the investigation made today showed that the matter had not been serious. The granting of shore liberty was resumed today, when 4,000 men, double the number of yesterday were permitted to go ashore. The local authorities consented to this large shore party. The men have been cordially received in Rio Janeiro."

This morning the officers of the fleet went to Sylvestre on special tramway cars and then continued the trip by railroad as far as the Hotel Paineras. When they reached the sumit of Mount Corcovsdo a magnificent panorama spread out before them. They remained on the top of the mountain for half an hour.

On the return a splendid breakfast was served at the hotel, covers being laid for six hundred persons. The minister of marine, Admiral Alencar, presided and on either hand sat Admirals Thomas and Emory. The other guests included the captains of the battleships, Brazilian naval officials and prominent members of society. A number of women occupied seats apart from the table.

Amiral Alenca ended an eloquent speech of greeting by offering a toast to the health of President Roosevelt amid great applause. The marine band played the American and Brazilian National anthems and the name of Roosevelt was loudly cheered in conjunction with that of the United States.

The officers of the fleet have begun to arrange an entertainment in return for the many receptions given in their honor. Rear Admiral Evans who has been suffering from rheumatism for the past few days, has improved considerably since yesterday.

The Argentine Republic will send a division of warships to meet the American fleet off Patagonia and Chile will send a division with Captain Pratt's flagship to meet the Americans and escort them as far as Africa.

BASEBALL RULING.

National Association Promulgates Order as to Reserve List.

(By Wire to the Morning Star.)

Cincinnati, O., Jan. 14.—The notice sent out by the National Baseball Commission suggesting a revision of the final reserve list is addressed to the officers of the National Association and in part is as follows:

"We desire to call your attention officially to the National Association's final 'reserve list' issued on October 17, 1907. This list contains the names of a great number of players as being reserved by various National Association clubs to whom such clubs have absolutely no title whatever. It pertains to players who have been purchased or drafted by major league clubs. In some instances many thousands of dollars are involved and it is for that reason that we call your attention to this matter at this time so that the subject may be properly and intelligently considered and such action taken with respect to it as may be deemed advisable.

"We recommend that an examination of this matter be made at once and if it is found that the title of the players referred to have passed from the National Association clubs carrying them on their reservation lists as to the major league clubs, as indicated, as no doubt will be the case in almost every instance, but that all of such names together with such others as may be found in the same class be at once stricken from said National Association and final reserve list."

—Guilford College, Jan. 13. One of the buildings of Guilford College, King Hall, was destroyed by fire between 5 and 7 o'clock this morning. This building contained the library, two society halls and six class rooms. By the time the fire was discovered it was too late to save the building. By the heroic efforts of several professors and students a portion of the library was saved and most of the furniture in the halls belonging to the Henry Clay and the Websterian Literary Societies.

DUNCAN S. A. L. RECEIVER

(By Wire to the Morning Star.)

Richmond, Va., Jan. 14.—Edward Carlton Duncan, of Raleigh, N. C., was this afternoon appointed a receiver of the Seaboard Air Line Railway Company by Judges Pritchard, Boyd and Purnell, of the United States Court.

Mr. Duncan at once qualified and joined Messrs. Warfield and Williams at a conference at which Messrs. Undermeyer, Braxton and Byrne, counsel for the receivers, were present. After the conference Messrs. Untermeyer and Byrne left for New York and Mr. Warfield for Baltimore. Mr. Duncan will leave Richmond tomorrow morning and Mr. Williams will remain here for a few days.

Mr. John Skelton Williams gave out a statement tonight in which he said he was greatly pleased that Mr. Duncan had been named as third receiver.

Mr. Duncan is a director of the Atlantic and North Carolina Railroad and has served for the past three terms as revenue collector at Raleigh, having been appointed by President McKinley. Mr. Duncan said tonight that he would call on President Roosevelt tomorrow and tender his resignation as Revenue Collector.

"Packy" McFarland of Chicago, had the better of "Bert" Keyes, of New York, in a 12-round boxing bout at the Armory Athletic Association last night at Boston. McFarland proved himself much the cleverer of the two and punished his man badly in each round. Keyes took a terrific beating but was so strong that he showed no signs of it at the final round.

Examination of witnesses in the Government's suit against the American Tobacco Company for alleged violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust law, in progress in New York for several weeks, will be transferred to Cincinnati on January 27th. Counsel MacReynolds for the Government said that after the hearing in Cincinnati he will go to Louisville, Richmond and other cities for further evidence.

James Ryder Randall, of Augusta, Ga., a native of Baltimore, died at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon at Augusta, after an illness of only a few days. Colonel Randall was perhaps the most famous of all the war poets. Among other famous products of his pen was "Maryland, My Maryland." For 20 years he was editorial writer of the Chronicle, severing his connection with that paper in 1888 when he became connected with the Baltimore Press.

Presidents of railroads operating in Tennessee have been requested by Governor Patterson to meet him in conference at Nashville on January 27th to discuss the question of reducing passenger rates in the State and saving him the necessity of calling a special session of the legislature .

KENTUCKY SENATORSHIP

Manful Fight Being Made Against Ex-Governor Beckham.

(By Wire to the Morning Star.)

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 14.—Despite the result of today's balloting for United States Senator, Governor Beckham's friends claim to be as confident as ever and claim that on the next ballot four of the Democrats who voted scatteringly today, will vote for him tomorrow and that he will be elected. The forces opposing Beckham are jubilant and say that five or six more of the Democrats will desert Beckham tomorrow and thus further emphasize the helplessness of the Beckham fight.

The Republicans practically concede that neither Bradley nor any other Republican can win but that an anti-Beckham Democrat will ultimately be elected.

To an outsider it has the appearance of a deadlock which may not be broken for several weeks. A joint ballot will be taken each day until an election is had or until the Legislature adjourns.

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 14.—The schooner Edgar C. Ross made Hampton Roads tonight, in distress and signalling for assistance. Tugs left immediately to render assistance. Captain Quillen is in command and the vessel sailed from Norfolk ten days ago. Encountering gales off Hatteras she lost nearly every stitch of canvas and was forced to slowly beat her way back to the Roads.

—Burlington, Jan. 12.—Leonard Terrell, aged 14, of Union Ridge, eight miles north of Burlington, was killed Friday by the accidental discharge of a gun. His father had asked him to get the gun from the rack for him, and in an attempt at obedience the gun slipped from his hand, falling to the floor, the hammer striking some obstruction in its downward course. The charge entered the boy's abdomen, passing through his body, and came out at his back. He died a few minutes after the accident occurred.

——Bids for the $100,000 of 5 per cent. water and sewerage bonds for the city have been called for and will be received until February 10th, when if the bids are satisfactory, the bonds will be sold. Burlington at present has only $30,000 bonded indebtedness and for this reason and the fact that she has permanent improvements far in excess of this amount these bonds should be attractive to investors.

—Lumberton Robesonian, 13th: A meeting of the Robeson County Cotton Association was held in the Opera House in Lumberton today from noon to 2 o'clock. Speeches were made by Pres. Geo. B. McLeod and Col. E. F. McRae, of Maxton, urging the importance of a full representation from Robeson at the annual State Convention of the North Carolina Division of the Southern Cotton Association, which will be held in Charlotte on the 21st and 22d inst., and also urging the importance of raising Robeson county's part of the amount due Pres. C. C. Moore. About seventy delegates were appointed from each township. A list of these delegates, together with a fuller account of the meeting, will be given in Thursday's Robesonian. The election of officers resulted in the selection of Mr. W. P. Barker, president; Mr. August Shaw, vice president; Mr. J. E. Carlyle, secretary and treasurer. The meeting was a very enthusiastic one.

BOBBY'S GHOST

By Colin S. Collins

Copyright, 1906, by Beatrix Reade

Carter threw down the pamphlet with an exclamation of disgust. "You'll never get ahead if you read that sort of trash," he admonished. "Why don't you get good books, Bobby?"

"These is good," protested Bobby. "They're first rate. I'll let you have it to read after I've finished if you don't believe it."

Carter fled. It was not the first time he had sought to correct Bobby's literary taste, and it generally ended in his defeat. Once he had thought of appealing to Thomas Pace, but he had a liking for the lad, and to report to the head of the firm that the office boy was devoted to dime novels might simply result in the loss of his job.

It was Bobby who had saved the day when Mabel Keeler had been accused of losing an important letter by declaring that he had lost it himself. It had very nearly resulted in his own dismissal. But Bobby could be sworn at, and this had saved the situation by providing a vent for the "old man's" choler.

Ever since that night Bobby had been a favorite with Carter and Mabel. They two were to marry when the long expected raise came, and Bobby knew it.

It was some three hours later and the exploits of Antelope Andy, the famous Indian killer, were drawing to a close wherein he saved the girl, but did not marry her in order that there might be another romance in the next issue of the series, when the book suddenly shot into the desk and Bobby stood at attention. Long practice had enabled him to tell the "old man's" hand on the knob among a thousand.

Pace passed rapidly across the customer's space and into the cashier's cage. The clerks looked wonderingly at him. They knew that it had been a memorable day on the street, and Pace's appearance bore the marks of the storm.

"TOO LATE," SAID BRACE. "I AM GOING TO KILL YOU."

"Carter," he said hurriedly, "you may let the clerks go, but I wish you would stay yourself. I shall be busy for some time and may need you. Miss Keeler, please get your book."

With a sigh Mabel picked up her stenographic book and followed her employer into his private office. Carter dismissed the other clerks and returned quietly to his books. Bobby made himself comfortable and reached for his beloved literature. He must wait to copy the letters Mabel was taking down, but he had a new issue of "The Young Pioneers" and a delay did not worry him.

For an hour or so the outer office was quiet, the stillness broken only by the scratching of Carter's pen and the indistinct monotone of Pace's voice as he dictated steadily. Then with a crash the door was thrown open and Frederick Brace burst in.

Bobby sprang up in surprise. Brace was a broken down operator—a "ghost," in the slang of the street; a ghost of the past, who now and then came into the customers' room to beg a "stake" from some old timer who could remember when Brace was one of the leading operators on the street and not a broken down hanger on, playing an occasional tip in the bucket shops on money borrowed from some sympathetic and prosperous acquaintance. He could have no business with Thomas Pace.

Brace brushed him aside and strode through the wicket gate. Carter sprang to interpose, but was thrown roughly to one side, and followed, expostulating, as the excited man forced his way into Pace's office.

Pace looked up in astonishment. "What is it, Brace?" he asked. His hand sought his pocketbook.

"I've not come for a loan," laughed Brace wildly. "I don't want your charity, Tom Pace. I want justice." He swayed unsteadily, the light of madness gleaming in his eyes. "I want you to give back what you have stolen from me."

Pace held out a bill. "You are excited, Brace," he said quietly. "Come in in the morning and talk it over. I am very busy now. This will fix you up for the present, won't it?"

Brace snatched the bill from his hand and tore it in shreds. "Five dollars!" he laughed wildly. "You think you can get off with $5? Why, I want a million. You've got it—there in the safe."

"You should know better than that," protested Pace. "You know we send everything to the safe deposit at 5."

"You've got it tonight," raved Brace, "I know— Come back!" he broke off as Carter tried to leave the room. The bookkeeper paused for a second, irresolute. Brace drew a revolver from his pocket. Carter motioned him to return it and stepped back to the desk. The incident seemed to fan Brace's fury. He stared wildly about the room.

"You ruined me!" he shouted. "You stole from me! They tell me you broke the G. and W. pool. Don't deny it. The papers are full of it." He drew out an extra of one of the afternoon papers and waved it in front of Pace.

"What of it?" demanded the broker.

"Brady gave me a hundred to play on the pool. One hundred dollars on a two dollar margin. Fifty shares—and you broke the pool."

"I found that the others had broken their agreement, and I had to get out to protect myself," explained Pace. "I had no knowledge of your operations. It was purely self defense."

"You lie," snarled Brace. "You did it to throw me. You knew that with such a start I could have won back to the Exchange. You were afraid of me and you ruined me."

For the first time Pace showed impatience. He must get certain letters out in time to catch the night mail. "Come in in the morning and argue the matter," he said. "I cannot spare the time to talk tonight."

Brace leveled his revolver. "Unless you give me back the money you stole from me," he said impressively, "I shall shoot you down like a dog, you and these others too. Then I shall take the money that is really mine and flee. I have it all arranged. I will count ten."

Pace's face was beaded with perspiration. No help was at hand, and this man, driven mad by the excitement of the panic, had them at his mercy. "I will give in," he said weakly. "Come over to the safe."

"Too late," said Brace, his brain taking a new impression. "I am going to kill you anyway. One, two, three"—He sank to the floor with a groan. A huge commercial report had knocked him senseless, and Bobby stood triumphantly over the prostrate figure.

"I thought it was just a row," he said, "until the 'Ghost' begun t' count. Then I remembered that was the way they did with Antelope Andy." He fished the book from his hip pocket. "'Quick as a flash,'" he read, "'Antelope Andy, with herculean strength, seized the chest and brought it down on the head of his antagonist, felling him like a log.' I guess them half dime books ain't no good."

He turned to Carter, who explained to the mystified Pace.

"I think, Robert," declared the broker, "that there is good in all things. We shall have to raise your salary to enable you to increase your library and so be provided against all emergencies."

"I don't want no raise," protested Bobby. "Give it to Carter or Miss Mabel. They want it to get married on."

"I guess that can be arranged, too," laughed Pace. "And as soon as we can get an ambulance here to take care of poor Brace we'll go uptown for a celebration dinner."

"At a real restaurant?" demanded Bobby.

"At the best," laughed Pace.

"Gee!" sighed Bobby. "I'm glad I saved yer. I'm hungry. I only had a cream puff and a pretzel for lunch."

On the way up in the street car—the cabs had all gone uptown at that hour—Bobby sat between Carter and Mabel.

"Them books is good," he suggested, his mind harking back to the discussion of the afternoon.

"I bet you'll let your boys read them," Bobby added.

St. Columba's Stake.

On one occasion, so the legend goes, St. Columba blessed a knife so that it never could hurt any creature afterward. His blessing produced exactly the opposite effect on the stake. A very poor peasant brought it at the saint's bidding. St. Columba sharpened it with his own hand and then blessed it. "Keep it," he said. "It will hurt neither man nor beast, only wild animals and fish. So long as you keep it you will never lack flesh food." The peasant fastened it in the ground and the very next day found a very fine stag impaled. Not a day passed without some wild creature being thus captured. The wife was frightened. "Some one will get hurt," she said. "Then we shall be either killed or sold as slaves." The peasant removed it and laid it by in his house. The next day his dog was killed by it. He put it in the river and found a marvelously big salmon on it. The next place was on the roof, where it proved fatal to a crow. Persuaded by his wife—"per sociam, ut Adam," says the biographer—he cut it up and burned it and was as poor as ever all the rest of his life.—London Spectator.

Whiskers as Toothpicks.

Nature has armed the walrus with a growth of whiskers which extend three or four inches from its snout, with the apparent motive of enabling it to detect the presence of an iceberg before actual contact has resulted. These whiskers are quite stiff, and this quality improves with age. When a walrus is killed the natives proceed to pull out, with the aid of rude pincers, each separate whisker. After a thorough drying they are arranged in neat packages and exported to China for use as toothpicks.

THE COTTON MARKET.

(By Wire to the Morning Star.)

New York, Jan. 14.—The cotton market had quite a sharp advance after a lower early session, closing steady at a net gain of 9 to 13 points. Sales were estimated at 225,000 bales. The market opened steady at a decline of 3 to 4 points and during the early session sold off to a net loss of 6 points on the active months under scattered liquidation or realizing with some local bear pressure which was encouraged by disappointing cables, private advices saying that the labor situation in Lancashire looked less favorable and apprehensions of a renewal of Wall Street liquidation, but there was no sign of this latter development, receipts ran very light. Southern news as to immediate spot conditions was bullish and the market rallied during the middle session on buying, which was credited to one of the leading outside operators and covering of shorts. Prices made a new high record for the month during the afternoon with active positions at one time showing a net gain of 14 to 17 points. The close was a little off from the best under realizing. Possibly the early decline was promoted by apprehensions that warehouse difficulties with the Western belt would result in forced liquidation of spot cotton, but nothing developed during the day to justify such predictions. Exports were moderately full and Southern spot markets were unchanged to 1-8c higher.

Receipts at the ports today 43,172 bales, against 56,570 last week and 63,607 last year. For the week 280,000 bales against 293,081 last week, and 348,781 last year. Today's receipts at New Orleans 16,849 bales against 16,937 last year and at Houston 13,339 bales against 26,927 last year.

DRY GOODS MARKET.

(By Wire to the Morning Star.)

New York, Jan. 14.—The dry goods market was somewhat more active today, especially in jobbing houses. Many retail buyers are in but are not trading freely. Staple ginghams have been reduced from 7 cents to 6 cents per yard. Reductions have also been made in linings and other cottons. Yarns are quiet.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

(By Wire to the Morning Star.)

New York, Jan. 14.—The stock market was again freely dealt with today. The result of these operations was the maintenance of prices at a level generally above last night. The business was mostly unevenly distributed, however, and the price movement was a checkered one and notable for some of the omissions from the list of stocks affected as much as for those that showed conspicuous strength. Reading, the Harriman and Hill stocks were fed out in about equal proportion to the demand at all times, so that the movement of these stocks was restricted notwithstanding a continuance of a considerable share of activity in them.

Details of projected economies of railroad companies by reduction of working force and cutting down of salaries of executive officers were considered of less importance as indicating the outlook than was the money market future. There was a pronounced recession in the rates of interest for time loans caused by larger offerings and also by a decrease in demand for this form of loan. The reflux of funds to the reserve centers seems to be on so large a scale that no misgivings are entertained of the effect of treasury withdrawals of government deposits from the national banks, or of other possible requirements. While the market had an irregular appearance nearly all the time the process of lifting prices had traversed pretty much the whole list by the end of the day and the closing tone was distinctly strong. Bonds were irregular. Total sales, par value were $4,252,000. United States bonds were unchanged on call. Total sales of stocks today were 941,800 shares.

RAPID PROGRESS IN THAW HEARING

ALWAYS BEEN IRRATIONAL

District Attorney Scored Point by Interposing Relation of Patient and Those Who Cared for Him. Judge Delayed.

(By Wire to the Morning Star.)

New York, Jan. 14.—The attorneys for Harry K. Thaw at his trial today, began relentlessly to build up the case of legal insanity which they have interposed in his behalf as a defense for the killing of Stanford White.

The two principal witnesses of the day were Prof. Charles H. Koehler, of Winona, Minn., who acted as instructor to Thaw in the Wooster, Ohio, University in 1886, and Mrs. Amy Crozette, of San Mateo, Cal., who attended today was a trainel nurse at Monte Carlo in 1897. They both told of the young man's eccentricities and declared that his manner always was irrational.

Dr. John T. Deemar, of Kittaning, Pa., one of the Thaw family physicians, also was heard as were the attending physicians of three institutions for the insane where members of Thaw's family on both paternal and maternal sides were confirmed.

District Attorney Jerome, by unexpectedly invoking the sacred privilege of physician and patient, blocked much of the testimony as to unsoundness of mind in the Thaw family, but the calling of the witnesses and the questions they were allowed by the court to answer, left the desired impression upon the jury. Mr. Jerome explained that the law compelled him to object to such testimony without an express waiver from the patient. Even the nurse, who attended Thaw, was not allowed to testify until Thaw personally had made a waiver of the confidential privilege.

There was a half hour delay in beginning the trial today, Justice Dowling having been caught in a subway blockade.

Dr. John T. Deemer, of Kittang, Pa., one of the Thaw family physicians, was the first witness called. Dr. Deemar testified at the first trial that he treated Harry Thaw as a boy for St. Vitus dance and measles. He repeated his testimony today and told also of attending members of the Copley family—the mother's branch of the defendant's antecedents.

Dr. Deemar said that Henry W. Capley, a brother of the elder Mrs. Thaw, died an imbecile .

Dr. Deemar was asked as to the present mental condition and whereabouts of John Ross, a material cousin of the defendant, but District Attorney Jerome objected on the ground that the doctor obtained his information while acting in a professional capacity and it would require a waiver from his patient before he could testify. Justice Dowling sustained the objection.

On cross-examination Mr. Jerome drew out the fact that Henry Copley, while incapacitated for mental work, was never confined in an asylum.

Dr. William W. S. Butler, of Roanoke, Va., former assistant physician at the Western Lunatic Asylum, Staunton, Va., where Horace S. Thaw, a paternal cousin of Harry Thaw, was confined, was the next witness. When Dr. Butler was asked as to Horace Thaw's condition up to the time of his death, District Attorney Jerome again objected on the ground of confidential relation and was sustained. The District Attorney also successfully objected to the introduction in evidence of the commitment papers prepared when Horace Thaw was admitted to the asylum on the ground that they were hearsay.

Dr. L. S. Foster, of Norfolk, Va., formerly of the Eastern State Hospital for the Insane at Williamsburg, Va., where William S. Thaw, another cousin of the defendant was confined, was next on the stand.

Dr. Foster was asked to identify the records of the asylum as to the admittance of William Thaw and did so. When the record was offered in evidence, Mr. Jerome objected on the ground that it was not competent testimony and was sustained.

Mr. Littleton recalled Dr. Deemar but succeeded in circumventing the former objections of the District Attorney as to the case of John Ross. Mr. Deemar said he ceased to be Ross' physician after the latter was committed to the Hope Institution for the feeble minded, where he is still a patient. He was allowed to tell of Ross' mental condition and declared it unsound, the symptoms being maniacal.

Charles Koehler, of Winona, Minn., who was a teacher at Wooster University, Wooster, Ohio, in 1886, when Harry Thaw was a student there, was asked to tell his impression of Thaw as a boy of 16 or 17 years of age.

"Harry Thaw always had a nervous gait and walked jerkily" he said. "His eyes were striking, his complexion anaemic. His manner in the class room was abstracted and indifferent. His eyes usually had a fixed, staring gaze. There was never any warmth in his eyes—no illumination."

Mr. Kohler said he sat down many of Thaw's eccentricities in a diary which was destroyed ten years ago. Thaw's mind was always worldly and he had great difficulty in following any demonstration.

Cross examined by District Attorney Jerome, Mr. Koehler said 200 boys came under his care at Wooster and since that time as a teacher he had been thrown in contact with 1,500 boys or more. The witness insisted, however, that the memory of Thaw—a pale face, twitching lad—stood out above the others. When Jerome asked if the witness had carried Thaw along in his mind as a "horrible example," Mr. Littleton objected and was sustained.

Koehler said he had often used Thaw's case as an illustration. He was asked where and to whom.

"To a man named Bingham," began the witness.

"What Bingham," demanded Jerome "the police commissioner?"

Thaw himself joined in the general laughter. He looked annoyed, however, when the witness said he used the defendant as the example of the son of a rich man. The luncheon recess was then ordered.

Dr. Robert H. Chase, superintendent of the Friends' Asylum for the Insane at Frankford, near Philadelphia, where Hariret Alice Thaw, a paternal aunt of the accused is confined, was the first witness at the afternoon session. He said he knew Miss Thaw and had examined her from time to time as to her mental condition.

Invoking again the confidential relationship of physician and patient, District Attorney prevented the witness from saying what the mental condition was.

The original committent papers were offered but were rejected by the court.

Mrs. Amy Cosette, the trained nurse who attended Harry Thaw at Monte Carlo in 1897, an Englishwoman now residing in California, took the stand.

District Attorney Jerome objected to any testimony from Mrs. Cosette unless Thaw waived the point of privileged communication as between patient and nurse. Justice Dowling asked Thaw if he desired to enter a waiver. "I do," replied the defendant.

Mrs. Gossette said that while under her care and with a temperature of 104 degrees, Thaw dressed himself one day and stole out. He was gone two hours and came back in a highly nervous condition.

Mrs. Gossette said that while Thaw was under her care he impressed her is being distinctly irrational.

Martin Green, a newspaper man who witnessed the tragedy and testified last year that Thaw acted in a thoroughly irrational manner, described Thaw's apeparance as "badly mussed up and irrational."

Thomas B. Hanley, another newspaper man who saw the killing, testified that Thaw impressed him as an insane man.

Mr. Littleton here asked for an early adjournment until tomorrow because of the non-arrival of certain out-of-town witnesses and it was granted.

LOGGERHEADS IN ALABAMA

Attorney General of State and Federal Judge Differ.

(By Wire to the Morning Star.)

Montgomery, Ala., Jan. 14.—The feature of the hearing of the railroad cases before Judge Thomas J. Jones in the United States Court today, were an exchange of remarks between Judge Jones and Attorney General Garber, with regard to criticism of the court by the State officers.

Mr. Garber had said that the court would have no right to go into the motive of the legislation under discussion neither would it be proper for the court to consider the allegations that the Governor had brought this about as a result of prejudice against railroads or words to that effect.

Judge Jones replied that it would not be decent for the court to criticise the Governor of the State neither is it decent for the same Governor to criticise the judge of the court as the cases are being tried. He continued:

"The matter is of moment because of a belief on the part of the court that statements of Governor Comer in the past were in criticism of action taken by the court on granting orders preventing the enforcement of the new State laws.

The railroads asked that the injunctions against the old laws, be supplemented to cover the new, it being argued that the new were in effect a part of the old. The State moved to strike these motions from the files.

TILLMAN ON PROHIBITION.

Told 'Em in Washington Time Not Yet Ripe.

(By Wire to the Morning Star.)

Washington, Jan. 14.—Senator Benjamin R. Tillman of South Carolina, was the principal speaker at a meeting at the First Congregational Church in this city tonight of the Federation of Christian forces of the District of Columbia, whose aim is to secure prohibition for Washington. Senator Clay of Georgia presided .

Mr. Tillman expressed the opinion that the time was not yet ripe for prohibition in Washington, because it had not, he said, worked well elsewhere. He thought the only way to get prohibition would be to convince Congress that those identified with the movement are earnest and sincere of purpose. To properly convince Congress it would, he thought, be a good idea to gather all the temperance forces and march to the capitol. A resolution looking to united action in the matter of securing prohibitory legislation was adopted.

DISTRESS AT NORFOLK

Steamer and Schooner Fared Badly in Storm of Sunday.

(By Wire to the Morning Star.)

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 14.—The British steamer Dunnolly, from Mobile to Rotterdam, arriving in port today for coal, reports Captain Semple injured and the mate hurt in the storm of Sunday morning. Both were thrown from the bridge by a mighty wave that struck the steamer. The bridge railing was carried away and the rigging and bulwarks damaged.

The three-masted schooner Mark Pendleton, Captain Dodge, made the port in distress today with mainsail fore and main topsail and main gaff sail gone. She was bound from Boston to Savannah with garbage tankage and put in for new canvass.

Wants to Know About Sale of Emergency Securities—Republicans Table All Amendments Worth While.

(By Wire to the Morning Star.)

Washington, Jan. 14.—The recent bond issue by the Treasury Department was again the subject for discussion in the Senate today. being brought forward by a resolution offered by Senator Culberson, calling on the Secretary for additional information concerning the reasons that induced him to award bonds to National banks instead of to individuals who he declared, offered a higher price.

Mr. Aldrich insisted that the resolution should not be adopted until after Secretary Cortelyou's reply to a resolution formerly adopted by the Senate was received, but promised to aid in securing additional information if that reply was insufficient. Mr. Culberson's resolution went over under the rules.

During the session Senator Tillman offered a resolution embodying a new series of inquiries concerning the financial situation.

The Senate today passed a bill appropriating $3,000,000 for a site on the South side of Pennsylvania avenue, Washington, opposite the grounds of the White House, for a building for the departments of State, Justice, Commerce and Labor.

A bill to appropriate $10,000,000 to purchase all the land on the South side of Pennsylvania Avenue between the capital and the White House grounds for the purpose of the location of public buildings as was needed, was discussed. The bill had been passed by the Senate at a previous session. Under objection the bill went over.

The resolution offered by Mr. Culberson today directed the Secretary to inform the Senate of the amount of circulating notes issued by each National bank, to which was awarded the Panama bonds under the treasury circular of November 18, 1907, which notes were issued in consequence of the award of these bonds.

Mr. Culberson said that the act of Congress under which these bonds were awarded provides "distinctly and unequivocally" that the bonds may be disposed of by the Secretary of the Treasury at not less than their par value, under such regulations as he may prescribe, "giving," continued Mr. Culberson "to all citizens of the United States an equal opportunity to subscribe therefor."

"Not only that," he added, "the circular of the Treasury Department dated November 18, 1907, contains this statement: 'In considering bids, the bidders offering the highest prices will receive the first allotments.'

"I desire," said Mr. Culberson, "to submit to the Senate one or two facts which indicate that the Secretary of the Treasury has violated the law in issuing the bonds he has awarded."

He wanted this resolution adopted at once, he said, in order that the Secretary might reply to it when he sends in his reply to the resolution offered by Senator Aldrich. He read a letter from J. T. Coston, of Osceola, Ark., who said he had bid for $2,500,000 of these bonds and added that several million of dollars worth of these bonds had been disposed of below the amount he had bid. His bid had been 104.4 for $1,000,000 of the bonds and 103.5 for $1,500,000. He had asked the Secretary for an explanation and had received the following: 'In reply to your letter of the 13th instant, you are informed that the Department did not accept any individual's bids where the amount exceeded $10,000.'"

The letter was signed by J. H. Edwards, acting secretary.

Mr. Culberson said he had a letter from an attorney in this city saying he had bid $104.20 for $105,000 of the Panama bonds. Bonds had been bid for by individuals, he said aggregating $27,900,000 and not one of these bids was below $102 5-8 and yet, according to newspapers, bonds were awarded to the National banks aggregating $7,262,000, the bids for which were below those of individuals.

Mr. Aldrich asked that the resolution be not pressed until the Secretary's reply is received.

He insisted upon his objection and the resolution went over.

Senator Tillman introduced a resolution calling upon the Secretary of the Treasury for information concerning insolvent National banks as follows:

"1. The number of National banking asociations that have been placed in the hands of receivers as insolvent since January 1st, 1893; the capital stock of each such association; the name of the receiver of each such association; the amount of compensation paid to the receiver of each such association, together with the names of all attorneys or of special employes under such receiver, together with the compensation paid them for such service, the State from which they were appointed and their previous occupations.

"2. An itemized statement of the amount of money paid out by each receiver to creditors of each National banking association upon the claims proved, to shareholders, if any, and the amount of assessments levied upon shareholders of each such association.

"3. In making appointments for National Bank Examiners, receivers or special employes, is the Treasury Department governed by rules established by the Civil Service Commission, to determine the qualification of applicants, or are such appointments made at the discretion of the Comptroller of the Treasury?

"4. Have any National Bank Examiners, during the period named been appointed who have not been assigned to a regular district for permanent service? If so, give the names of such examiners, the States from which they were appointed, their previous occupations and compensation paid in each case.

"5. Is there any rule to determine the compensation to be paid to receivers, attorneys or special employes of insolvent associations based upon the capital stock of the association or its resources, or is the fixing of such compensation wholly within the discretion of the Comptroller of the Currency?"

Senator Tillman succeeded in having a bill introduced by Senator Gore referred to the committee on five civilized tribes of which he is the chairman. Senator Clapp, chairman of the Committee on Indian Affairs protested and with the assent of Senator Gore had the reference made to his committee. Then Mr. Tillman declared with emotion that he wanted something for his committee to do.

Mr. Tillman finally secured the bill and the blind senator remarked that he hoped now that Mr. Tillman had the bill that "he would get on the reservation."

In the House.

Washington, Jan. 14.—The amount of the fine and the length of the term of imprisonment to be meted out to officers and directors of corporations for violating the law with respect to money contributions for political purposes furnished material for a lengthy debate in the House today in connection with the consideration of the penal code bill. All amendments which increase the penalty or enlarge the scope of the law, however, were voted down. These amendments without exception emenated from the Democratic side but the one that brought forth the most discussion was by Mr. Cockran, of New York, who wanted the fine fixed at $10,000 instead of at not more than $1,000 and the imprisonment at ten years instead of at not more than one year.

In the debate, Mr. Payne of New York, the Republican floor leader, charged that the Democrats and not the Republicans were delaying the passage of the bill by emitting political buncombe. His colleague, Mr. Fitzgerald, refuted the statement and said that the Democrats were only seeking to improve on the bill.

There was a sharp debate over the section prohibiting the enticing of artificers and workmen from government arsenels or armories by private employers and all attempts to amend the provision so as to make it applicable in time of war or public emergency
